

AT&T Online Safety

AT&T is the nation's leading broadband provider and a premier wireless company, with a long-standing commitment to protecting consumers of all ages online and safeguarding their Internet experience. Not only do we offer services that help consumers stay safe, but also we create educational opportunities for children, parents, older Americans and small businesses to stay safe online-broadband and wireless. To increase consumer awareness, AT&T offers a full library of supportive Internet safety and security tips, and interactive safety games.

Internet Safety Educational Opportunities

Older Americans

- AT&T offers special presentations for older Americans on cyber safety, wireless and small business and written articles with helpful tips.
- AT&T provides a free cyber safety program for older adults, Safe Surfing, which is offered in communities across the country.

Parents

- AT&T partnered with iKeepSafe and DARE to make presentations on broadband and wireless about online safety to community groups and parents.
- AT&T hosts speakers at town hall events across the country to educate the importance of online safety. AT&T also has consumer focused educational pieces for town hall meetings on online safety.
- AT&T is exploring possibilities to provide parent and consumer-focused educational seminars using advanced technology.

Children

- AT&T launched an education program with iKeepSafe and DARE for children in grades 1-5 across the country on wireless and broadband online safety, including cyber bullying.

Small Businesses

- AT&T will be working with Women Impacting Public Policy (WIPP) on transmitting national online safety presentations.
- AT&T offers free handouts for small businesses on wireless, wireline and Internet safety.

AT&T also works with a variety of organizations that can provide resources:

- SeniorNET
- OASIS (Organization for Aging Americans)
- National Caucus and Center on Black Aged
- Family Online Safety Institute
- iKeepSafe
- DARE
- Enough is Enough
